multimedia 117 is a digital illustration class taught at DVC by Joanne Denning. This multimedia class teaches students the skills needed to draw using the computer. Students explore concepts and techniques, perspective, as well as color theory and learn how to create vector graphics for print and the web.

michael almaguer, an art instructor at Diablo Valley College, creates paintings, drawings and prints based on his observations of our time and environment. Often elaborating on these observations with personal perceptions, imaginations, memories, and stories inspired from family life and experience, Almaguer’s images communicate as visual metaphors.
